Overview

Solar energy is classified as a renewable energy source based on fundamental physics, the scale of the cosmos, and the quantitative relationship between the Sun's output and human energy needs. It is necessary for life on Earth, and can be harvested for human uses such as electricity. In the 21st century, as countries race to cut greenhouse gas emissions to curb the unfolding climate crisis, the transition to renewable energies has become a. There are two main types of solar energy technologies—photovoltaics (PV) and concentrating solar-thermal power (CSP). To fully understand why solar power is considered perpetual, one must examine the scientific criteria for. Renewable energy is energy from sources that are naturally replenishing but flow-limited; renewable resources are virtually inexhaustible, but they are limited by the availability of the resources. There are several ways to turn.
