

Is there an oversupply of solar inverters

Overview

---

With global solar installations slowing in 2023, the photovoltaic inverter industry faces an unprecedented challenge: supply now outstrips demand by 22%. This article explores why this imbalance occurred, its impact on solar projects, and actionable strategies for manufacturers and. It's no secret that prices throughout the solar supply chain have been at rock bottom over the past 18 months. At the World Future Energy Summit in Abu Dhabi, pv magazine spoke with two OPIS analysts about the current and projected price trajectory in the global supply chain. According to their analysis, overcapacity remains difficult to be kept in control, which makes an increase in solar module prices. Gilligan told PV Tech Premium that PV inverter revenue is predicted to fall 20% in 2024. The inverter market is experiencing “growing pains” as falling prices, shifting demand and technological product changes cause problems for the sector's major Western manufacturers. Solar companies worldwide are making significant changes in manufacturing, operations, and employment to adapt to a. At the beginning of the year, it was reported that there was a 45-GW inventory buildup of solar modules in the United States, which caused prices to be slashed by nearly half in 2023.
